[1] Each of us are authors of our deliverables and therefore we commit ourselves not to make use of other resources belonging to other people who do not make up this group.

[2] We have correctly understood our syllabus, understanding the Sprint-based assessment system in which each member of the group commits to perform the individual tasks to correctly conform the group work, marking that the work always meets the definition of "done" and aiming for the best possible grade and that failure to complete the compulsory tasks will result in a considerable drop in the grade.

[3] It is considered a correct performance of the work if the members of the team cooperate correctly so that the work goes ahead, ask doubts to the other members or to the teacher, always attend the classes, especially the laboratory classes and if any member must be absent he/she must communicate it, if the individual performance of any of the members decreases or on the contrary he/she puts aside his/her obligations he/she must communicate to the other members the reason for such absence in a justified way.

[4] If a team member fails to perform his or her duties for no apparent reason, he or she will be warned, the second he or she fails to perform his or her duties, action will be taken and he or she may even be expelled from the project.

[5] If all the work is carried out correctly, the team will be rewarded with an optimum mark in the deliverables, which is reward enough.

[6] We commit ourselves to carry out the deliverables following the explicit format in "On your deliverables.pdf".
